Fedrik Vaessen

Splintered Assembly

De hybride scupturen van Fedrik Vaessen (Tilburg, 1994) komen voort uit een mogelijk toekomstige wereld die tegelijkertijd vertrouwd en vervreemdend is. Hij gebruikt digitale technieken zoals 3D modelleren, maar past ook materialen toe zoals was en aluminium. Zo ontstaan werken die mechanisch en tegelijkertijd organisch aandoen. In zijn werk mengt Vaessen elementen van lichamen, architectuur en technologie. De sculpturen laten vormentaal van body-horror zien, onderzoeken het concept van cyborgs en doorbreken binair denken.

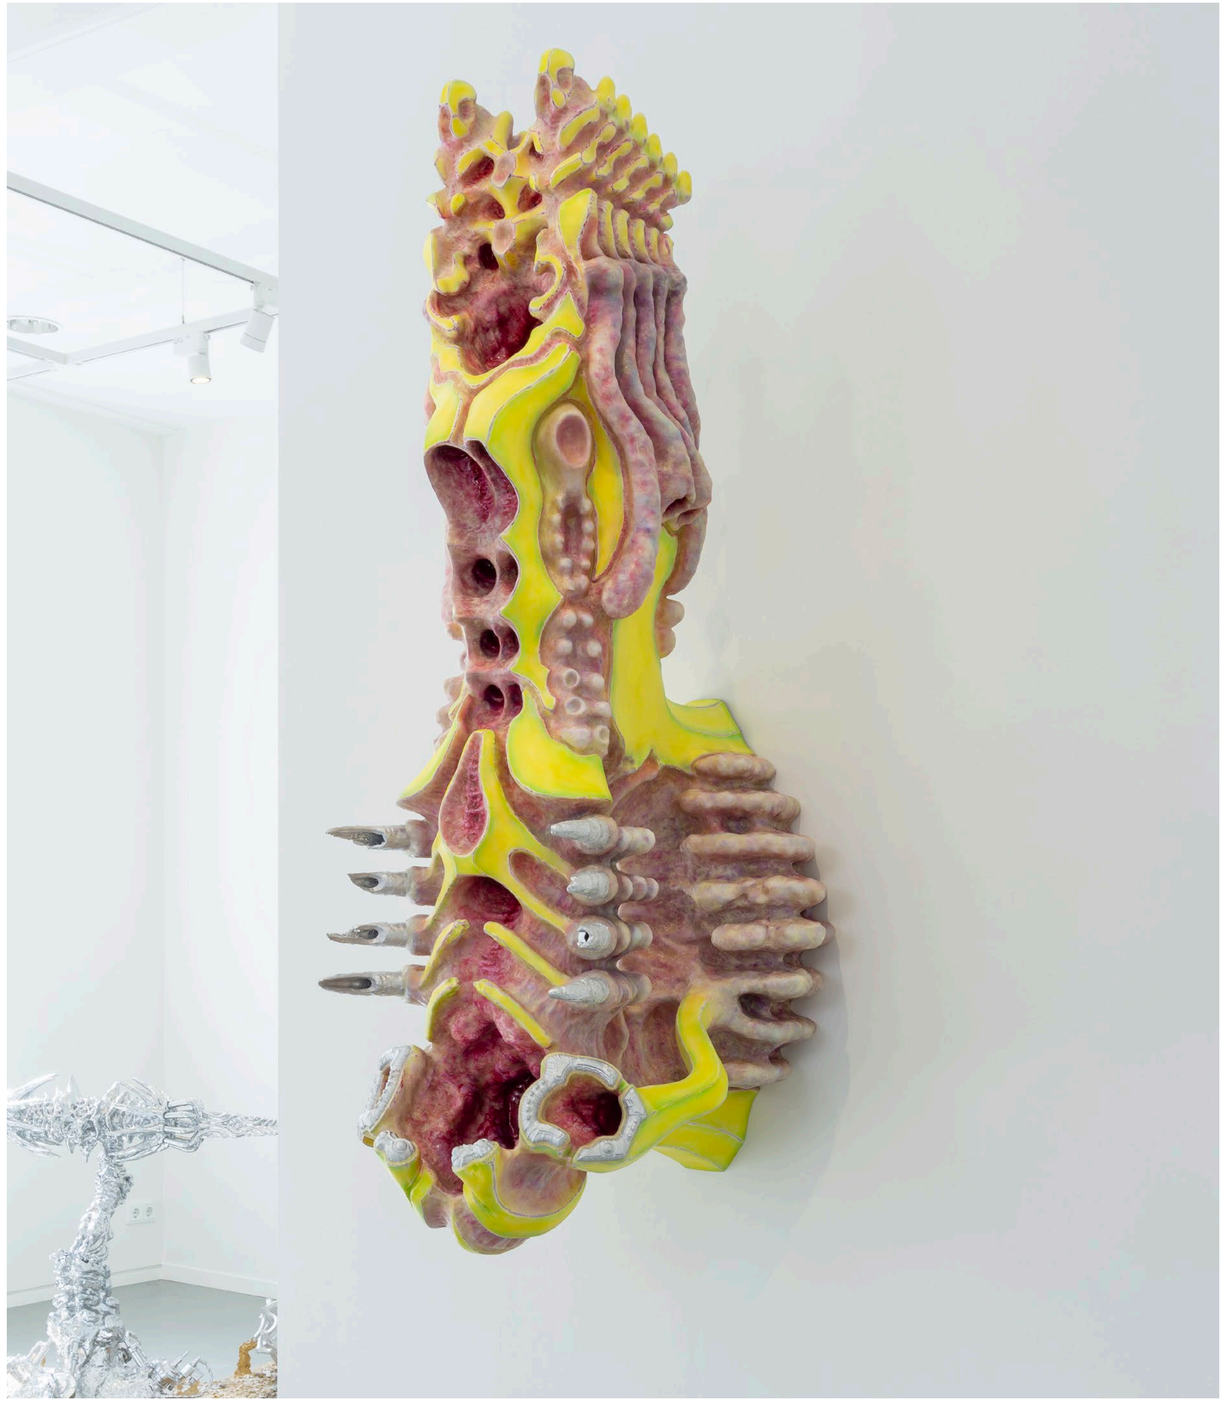

Brabantse Nieuwe
Samen met de Rabobank en Avans presenteert Het Noordbrabants de Brabantse Nieuwe. Dit zijn jonge kunstenaars uit Brabant die vaak voor het eerst een groter podium krijgen in het museum. Het Koetshuis is gratis te bezoeken.

The hybrid sculptures of Fedrik Vaessen (Tilburg, 1994) originate from a future world that feels both familiar and alienating at the same time. He uses digital techniques such as 3D modeling, while also applying materials like wax and aluminium. The result is work that appears both mechanical and organic. In his practice, Vaessen blends elements of bodies, architecture, and technology. The sculptures reveal a visual language of body horror, explore the concept of cyborgs, and challenge binary thinking.

Brabantse Nieuwe
In collaboration with Rabobank and Avans, Het Noordbrabants presents Brabantse Nieuwe. These are young artists from Brabant who are often given a larger platform in the museum for the first time. The Koetshuis can be visited free of charge.
